“ I forgot about all the duck and deer hunting trips. We went bow hunting for deer, on our horses. Kevin, some how shot an arrow in his leg.
I think he had his General Contractors License when they lived in Salt Lake City. Unless, he was operating off his Dad's license. We built those huge apartments at the entrance to Murray Park. He would meet my friends and I in the morning. He would show me what to do on the plans, drop of the nail gun and compressor, go home and hang out with Terri. Then, he would show up at night and pick everything and go back home. Next day - repeat! Till we were done. He did work all day when it came to plywooding the roof. Because he and I were the only 2 that weren't afraid of heights and it was at least 4 stories high.

“ What can I say more than I'm glad to be Kevin's brother. He was always so nice to me when we were growing up. He took me to the pet store to help me buy my first fish and fish tanks. I still have a fish tank in my home. I admire his courage to quit smoking at such a critical and crucial time in his life. I admire his patience in adversity. So glad that he can be free of the trials he had in life and I look forward to the day we can meet again.
