

Israel Lamont Barlow

February 8, 2025

Israel Lamont Barlow, born to Daleen Bateman and Israel Y. Barlow, passed away in his hometown of Colorado City, Arizona, on February 8, 2025. The firstborn of his siblings, Lamont blazed a trail of love, laughter, and adventure for those who followed in his footsteps.

From an early age, Lamont was known for his infectious smile and a spirit of mischief that kept his childhood friends in constant laughter. His ability to make people smile was matched only by his big, kind heart. Lamont's love for people was evident in everything he did. He was a constant source of love and joy for his friends and family, often sharing his feelings through the power of music. Music was his language—whether happy, heartfelt, or difficult to express, Lamont's emotions were often shared through the songs he sent to loved ones.

Lamont met Elissa Wall, and together, they had two incredible children who became his "why" in this world. Throughout their journey, Lamont was a steadfast support to Elissa in her legal action against the religious leaders of the FLDS. The pressures of these legal battles led Lamont to change his name to Mark Davis, a name by which many knew him in both his professional and personal life. Through the changes in life and divorce, above all, Lamont loved his children with all his might.

After some time, Ashlee Bistline entered Lamont's life, bringing with her his "bonus" daughter, Sadie. Lamont embraced Sadie with open arms and loved her as a second father, forming a special bond that will be remembered fondly.

Lamont was preceded in death by his beloved mother, Daleen Bateman, whose absence he deeply felt. He is also preceded by his grandparents: David R. Bateman, Arleen Jessop, Joseph I. Barlow, and Leta Black, as well as his stepmother, Eunice Cook.

He is survived by his children: Kyson, Kyra, and his bonus daughter, Sadie; his father, Israel Y. Barlow; his brothers, Dave, Clinton, and Kurt; his sisters, Ilene, Sherilyn, Lucia, and Karleen; and his cherished nephews and nieces, whom he held near and dear to his heart. He had such a unique and individual relationship with all of them that every one of them is left with the feeling that they were his favorite.

“ I first met Lamont, an impact training class. He and I were the only 2 that were so stubborn that We stood through most of that class fiercely defiant and the two of us were not allowed to take our seat. (You'd have to have been there to understand) Eventually we both broke, and we're surrounded by love and opened our hearts. After that, he invited me to do some music for his video game called "autumn land" that he was working on. Which I did the music and his team really liked it. Wwwwmkolschmusic.com the song is call "Dragons and Battles"

I would very much consider him a dear friend. Although we didn't hang out much in the last several years, he was one of those friends you always knew you had even though we didn't have weekly calls. It was an honor and a pleasure to know you Lamont, and may God bless you on your next adventure!
