“ Hi honey. You can't even imagine how much I'm really missing you today. The dog poop needs to be picked up.....NO, JUST KIDDING! Everyone has been really good at helping me with the many things that you used to do. Things I just took for granet. Yes, I know, the flag needs to be replaced and I'll order it today, but I'M NOT TAKING THE BINOCULARS OFF THE MANTLE! Well, I would, if only you could come back to me. However, now that you've seen Heaven, I'm sure you're perfectly happy where you are. By now, you've probably found your Mom and Dad, Mark and Ian, Buddy and Helen, and Carol. Hopefully you will be able to find time to look up my Mom and Dad, Juanita, Donnie, and Tommy soon. I hesitate to quit writing, because I feel this is the only thread I have connected to you, but as a believer, I know that this IS NOT the end, but just the beginning for you and some day soon, I will be there with you so we can share a new beginning together. I LOVE YOU. PS: Could you tell me how to run the dish washer?

I wanted to comment so you truly know I am here for you until you and Mom meet again. The washer is a very nice one a little high tech for me as well.

“ I am so sadden to hear the news of Kathy passing. I've known Chuck and Kathy for many years as I get to service them as my clients at the salon. Quickly both Chuck and Kathy has become my very dear friends. I couldn't explain it but I just feel like our souls were the same. Both Chuck and Kathy were always so kind to me when we meet monthly for their pedicures. Each time Kathy leave the salon she would give me a hug and whispered to me “I love you sweet girl” and I just want to embrace her a little bit longer. Our last visit we had to say good bye because i was moving out of town and we hugged each other tight and we shed some tears but I feel it deep down that it would be our last good bye. I am so happy I got that hug from Kathy. I will miss you dearly Kathy. My condolences to Chuck, Rene, Sallie and the family. I wish you all comfort at this time. 💖🙏

“ My wife and I have fond memories of knowing Kathy, and Chuck, at First Southern Baptist Church while serving our Lord together. Kathy was confident that her salvation from the Lord was not based on any of her personal merit, but only on what Christ had fully done for her on the cross and through His resurrection. She gratefully acknowledged that with joy and by loving and serving others where and how she could.

We believe she could say the same thing that the apostle Paul did in 2 Timothy 1:12 “... I am not ashamed, because I know whom I have believed and am persuaded that he is able to guard what has been entrusted to me until that day.”
